The Old Bachelor.

"How did I come to adopt her?" My dear friend, that is about one of the silliest questions I ever heard to come from a man of your wisdom and common sense! It was Fate, that's what it was! Personally, I had no more to do with it than you have this moment. These things are all ordained and marked out for us, and we can neither avoid nor alter them. Fatality, do you call the doctrine? Well, call it what you will—there it is, and you can't make anything else out of it!

But about little Magdalen. I was coming down Broadway in a great hurry to catch an uptown stage before all those ferry people blocked into it, when there she sat on a curb stone, the wind blowing her yellow hair about and her poor little hands blue with cold, crying as if her heart would break. I didn't think the veriest savage could have helped stopping to ask her what the matter was, and I don't call myself a savage, if I do happen to have my little crusty fits now and then. So says I:

"Child, what's the matter?"

"I'm lost!" said she.

And come to inquire, why the poor little elf was fatherless, motherless, friendless, in all the wide world! Of course, I took her home, and you ought to have seen old Hannah, my housekeeper, stare when I walked in with the yellow-haired baby clinging to the little finger of my left hand. For she wasn't more than eight years old, and small at that!

"I give you a month's warning, sir!" says Hannah. But, bless your soul, she didn't go. Maggie took her heart by storm, as she always has done that to the rest of the world, and at the month's end you couldn't have hired old Hannah to leave the child.

Well, sir, she grew up as tall as a reed, and as pretty as a posy. I sent her to Madam Aimard's fashionable French boarding-school, for I was not going to have my Maggie a whit behind any one's else girl, I can tell you. My sister Simpkins objected. You see, with those nine daughters of hers, she grudged every penny of my money that was spent on any one else.

"You're putting silly notions in the child's head," said she. "A girl that will have her own living to earn, ought not to mingle with Madam Aimard's young ladies."

"I should like to know why?" says I.

"Because she is in no way their equal!" said Sister Simpkins.

"Fiddlesticks!" says I. "My Maggie is good and pretty, and if that don't constitute equality with any girl alive, I'll own up that we don't live in a republican country! As for earning her own living, why it's my business to look after that, and no one else need trouble their head about it!"

Mrs Simpkins pursed up her lips and looked unutterable things, but she did not dare to say anything more. She knew of old that I wasn't to be disputed when my will was up. But I sent the nine Miss Simpkinses nine coral necklaces the next Christmas, and that kept the peace for awhile.

When she came home from the boarding-school, she was prettier than ever—tall, as I said before, with yellow, silky hair, great shady-looking blue eyes, with lashes that curled up at the ends, and cheeks as fresh and pink as I remember the inside of two big shells that used to stand on my grandfather's best room mantel fifty good years ago.

So I cast about in my mind to find some new plan for making the old house lively for my little girl. I knew she couldn't thrive without her innocent gayeties, any more than a bird could without free air and sunshine; so I invited company, and made up little impromptu parties and frolics, and beat my brains for something to keep her amused. And I believe I succeeded too, for her step was as light as a feather, and you could hear her sing all over the house, when she thought she was alone.

And one day old Hannah came in, dusting chairs, and prying about for finger-marks on the paint in her odd, near-sighted way.

"Mr. Pelham," says she, rubbing away at a door-knob that was as bright before as hands could make it, "what would you say if we were to have a wedding in the old house?"

"A wedding!" I dropped my pen so that it made a big round blot on the paper, and stared. "Why, you're not going to be married, Hannah, after all these years?"

"Do I look like it?" sniffed Hannah contemptuously—and, to tell the truth, she didn't very much. "No, indeed, sir; I hope I know my place better than that. It's Miss Maggie I'm thinking of, sir."

I sat as if I had been stricken with a paralytic shock. Maggie to be married! Strange that I had never thought of that, as a natural consequence of parties, companies, evening concerts and summer picnics! And somehow a desolate chill crept down my veins as I thought how lonesome and dreary the old house would seem without Maggie.

"What makes you think so, Hannah?" I asked rather dolorously, and the old woman lowered her voice mysteriously as she answered.

"It's that Mr. Carlisle—he keeps coming all the time, and it's my honest belief he just worships the ground my young lady walks on. He is very handsome, too, and folks tell me he's worth money."

Mr. Carlisle! Well, old Hannah was right. He was a fine looking fellow, and well-to-do in this world's goods; but—who was there, after all, worthy of my tall, golden-haired princess with dewy blue eyes and lips like scarlet coral newly plucked out of the sea? Why couldn't Carlisle go off and marry one of the wise Miss Simpkinses, whose mother was on the look-out for husbands as an ogress whatches for eatable young travelers? I began to hate Carlisle.

"Pooh!" said I, upsetting my wastebasket of papers over the floor with an unwary fling of my feet. "I don't think she cares for Carlisle."

"Just you watch her, then, and see for yourself," said old Hannah, wisely wagging her cap border. "I never did set up for a prophet, Mr. Pelham, but them as isn't blind can't help seeing, and our eyes is given to us to use."

So old Hannah went her way, leaving me about as uncomfortable as a man has any business to be. My Maggie to be married! My pretty blossom to be plucked just as soon as it began to shed fragrance round my door-stone. I felt as a monarch may whose domains are invaded by an audacious foe. Should I write Carlisle a note and tell him to go about his business, or should I simply convey to him by my manners the hint that his presence was no longer specially desirable, or—but old Hannah's words recurred uncomfortably to my mind—should I first find out whether Maggie really did care for the young up-start?

My head dropped on my hands—my heart sunk somewhere below zero at the idea! I wondered if all fathers felt so when gay young cavaliers came wooing at their gates! And, after all, Maggie wasn't my real child, dearly as I loved and tenderly as I had cherished her.

I think I hardly slept all that night. I tossed to and fro on my pillow, counting the chimes of the old clock, as one by one it told the hours, thinking about Maggie and Carlisle, and wondering if the tardy daybreak would never redden over the hill-tops.

By that time my mind was made up. I would repress all these selfish ideas and only think of my girl's ultimate happiness. If she liked Carlisle, why Carlisle should have her.

I rose, dressed and went down to my study. The first thing I saw was a note lying on my library table. Probably it had arrived late last night. I broke the seal; it was from George Carlisle, asking permission to address Miss Magdalen Pelham.

Well—it was nothing more than I had expected—in fact, it rather expedited matters, which ought not to run too slowly. I refolded the epistle, and loooked severely at myself in the opposite glass.

"You middle-aged old fogy," quoth I, staring at myself with the severest expression of countenance I could call up at so short a notice, "I see through you. You have dared to suppose bright-eyed Magdalen could prefer you to these gay young fellows nearer her own age—you have even presumed to fall a little spice in love with her yourself. It will do you good to have some of the nonsense taken out of you. At your time of life too! Did you ever see a chestnut tree blossoming in November or a grape vine loaded with blue fruit at mid-winter?"

So off I trudged into the garden where Magdalen always walked in the early morning to tell her of young Carlisle's proposal.

She listened, looking very pretty and preoccupied, until I had finished.

"Well?" said she.

"Well?" I quoth, "what do you say?"

"What do I say? No, of course!"

"You mean yes, my dear," said I, "if you'll only take time to think."

"I mean no!" she flashed out. "Oh, Mr. Pelham, how can you think so basely of me?"

"Basely, my dear. I don't comprehend you."

She was beginning to cry now—big, sparkling drops like the first glittering diamonds of a July shower.

"I don't love him. I never can love him."

"But, why not, my dear?"

"Because I love somebody else," she sobbed, growing pinker and prettier than ever.

"Who is it, Maggie? You'll tell me, won't you? Why, child"—as she shrank blushingly back—"I am old enough to be your father!"

"You are not!" she exclaimed, indignantly, "and you are the last person in the world I would tell!"

"My darling, why not?"

The enigmas these women are! instead of answering me, she began to cry again as if her dear little heart was going to break.

And suddenly a great light flashed in upon my mind!

"Magdalen! Darling! Is it me that you love?"

And in another moment she was laughing and crying on my breast!

The old chestnut tree was garlanded with blossoms, even though its prime was past—the vine of life was mantling in blue clusters in the late, late harvest!

So I had to send as civil a note as possible to young Carlisle—and it's surprising how my feelings moderated toward him as I worte it!

And that is the way I won this peerless rose among women to be my wife—and I don't think she has ever regretted marrying the old man yet. Though I shouldn't dare to call myself "old" in her presence, to speak truth. People say it's a romantic story, but I say it is only an illustration of the fact that there is more romance in real life than there is in books, if we only knew it.

OUR DAUGHTERS.

Written for the Reading Dispatch by MARY W. NORTON.

Almost daily we see in the newspapers accounts of elopements or betrayals of young girls, which invariably bring the name and honor of woman into reproach, and almost make pure, good women think there is no virtue or honor in the rising generation of young women. Every day we can read of the downfall of some young woman, or the runaway marriage of some young girl who should hardly have been allowed to go beyond the parental threshold alone, much less form the acquaintance of men, and especially men unknown to their parents. Such things seem to be becoming more frequent every day, and it is time that parents make an effort to check it, and the sooner they realize the duty they should by no means neglect, in the proper training and education of their daughters, the sooner will such things be unknown. In the first place, we should try to make our homes such that our daughters will reluctantly leave them, even after we have given our consent, and never without. We should condemn any action whereby the name of woman is degraded in the presence of our daughters, and implant into their minds a hatred for anything of an immortal nature. We take great pains in securing them good school educations, so the world may think them accomplished, and yet we leave them go on to learn through a sad experience that which might have been averted had parents exercised a proper care and influence over them. Do we not frequently allow our daughters to go to places where they see sights and hear language which should make any woman blush? And worst of all, we allow then to go upon the streets alone, and comfort ourselves with the belief that will molest them or that they will do anything wrong because they are our daughters. True, a lady may appear upon the streets unprotected, but when she is often observed promenading, especially after dark and alone, there are always those who are quick to notice it and form opinions which are anything but favorable to her character, and they at once lay traps and schemes for her moral destruction. Is it not a shame that young men and boys are allowed to loaf around street corners and various other places, who make a practice of insulting and making indecent remarks about every young lady who must pass alone? Can parents allow their daughters to go about at night, when they know that such is the case, and never feel any concern about them, or feel that they should warn them of such danger? Mothers, let us try to make home happy and pleasant for our daughters, so they will have no desire to go upon the streets, and under our care guard zealously the name and honor of those near and dear to us. They should know that there are those who are constantly watching for an opportunity to lead the innocent and unsuspecting away from the paths of virtue and honor, and parents should especially impress upon the minds of their daughters that a woman's honor when once gone is gone forever. Let us explain to them the ways of the wicked who would rob them of that honor which woman holds most dear and sacred, and not rest satisfied with the thought that "my daughter will not fall." You dare not think that your daughter cannot be led away from the right, or that she is invulnerable, for how many daughters, with just as good and pure mothers as you, have fallen victims to the wicked and lustful designs of men. Mothers, we have it in our power to arrest this growing evil—that which is robbing us of our pure and unsuspecting women. Let us make up our minds to have nothing whatever to do with any one who even speaks disrespectful of woman, and let us ostracise him who would attempt her ruin. Let us teach our daughters thus, and also teach our sons to properly respect and honor woman, and we shall have the satisfaction of seeing a better and purer community and an honorable and noble class of women.

Bread Cast Upon the Water.

About a month ago an old New Yorker dropped his luggage before the clerk's desk in an Old Point Comfort hotel and dashed off his autograph in a free and easy hand, 'John McKesson, New York city. Day after day passed and the visitor seemed to be enjoying Virginia with a great deal of zest. When he finally made up his mind to move homeward he tripped once more to the clerk's desk, this time to ask for his bill. 'McKesson! McKesson!' ejaculated the clerk, 'there's no bill here for any Mr. McKesson.' 'No bill? why, what are you talking about. Do you know how long I've been here, Mr. Clerk?' 'Yes, sir, I do know, but I have orders from headquarters to take none of your money—not a cent.' Now comes on the scene a genial hotel proprietor to beam upon the astonished old Knickerbocker and grasp him by the hand after an enthusiastic fashion. 'You're the same old John McKesson I knew thirty years ago,' ejaculated the hotel man. 'Don't remember me eh? Well, let me recall a little incident which happened when I was struggling along in the world years and years back. You belonged to one of the leading wholesale drug firms in Maiden Lane, and I was the driver of an express wagon. One day I had to unload some packages going from your store to some Western town. My horses were scared just as I was handling the goods and one package was dumped to the ground and broken. At headquarters I was told that I'd have to make good the loss, a little matter of $20 or so, which meant a great deal to me. With a sore heart I went down to your store the next day to ask what was the lowest figure at which I could settle, and you, without a moment's hesitation, told me that I need not pay one cent, that you could stand the loss better than I could, and that must be the end of it. But it isn't the end of it, all the same, for I am making a round $100 a day down here now, though if I wasn't making a cent I'm dashed if I'd let you pay for anything under my roof, if you staid here the whole year through.'

Couldn't Make it Out.

The proprietor of a tannery having erected a building on the main street for the sale of his leather, the purchase of hides, etc., began to consider what kind of a sign would be most attractive. At last what he thought a happy idea struck him. He bored an augur hole through the door-post and stuck a calf's tail into it, with the bushy end flaunting out. After a while he noticed a grave-looking person standing near the door, with spectacles on, gazing intently at the sign. So long did he gaze that finally the tanner stepped out and addressed the individual:

"Good morning!"

"Morning," replied the man, without moving his eyes from the sign.

"You want to buy leather?"—"No."

"Want to sell hides?"—"No."

"Are you a farmer?"—"No"

"Are you a merchant?"—"No."

"Lawyer?"—"No."

"Doctor?"—"No."

"Minister?"—"No."

"What in the deuce are you?"—"I'm a philosopher. I've been standing here half an hour trying to decide how that calf got through that augur-hole, and for the life of me, I can't make it out!"

THREE BLACK CROWS.

The Old Story's Appearance Under a New Guise.

The Tall White-Haired Man With Earnest Upturned Face—The Swelling Crowd and the Materialization of a Terrible Calamity.

[Puck.]

A tall man, with long white hair, which half hid his coat-collar, stood in front of one of the large buildings on lower Broadway at noon the other day. His face was upturned, and he appeared to be gazing earnestly at the roof of the structure. In a few minutes he was joined by another man, and in a few minutes more another, an then another, until a score of men were gathered together on the pavement, looking at the upper stories of the tall structure. As the crowd began to swell, busy brokers stopped to look, messenger boys flocked to the spot from all directions, merchants, clerks, peddlers and idlers stopped in their journey and gazed at the building as if they expected some frightful catastrophe to occur. The throng soon grew too large for the pavement, and the gutter and a part of the street were speedily occupied by several hundred elbowing, jostling, impatient and curious sight-seers.

'I wonder if the wall's a-going to fall?' observed a speculative spectator on the outskirts of the throng.

'They say the wall is going to fall,' repeated the man next to him.

'Look out, the building is going to tumble!' shouted the next.

'Don't crowd so!' yelled a man in the center, 'the wall is going to fall.'

'Look out! look out!' shrieked a dozen others, and the men pressed backward on each other's toes until there was space enough on the pavement to let a regiment march through.

'I wonder whether it's on fire,' observed another spectator.

'It's on fire!' shouted another.

'See the smoke!' yelled a third.

'Fire! fire!' howled a score of other voices, and the crowd surged back to the pavement as flies gather on a lump of sugar in summer time.

'I hope there are no women or children in the building,' remarked a charitably inclined citizen.

'There are women and children in the building getting burned up!' shouted another.

'Three women getting burned up!' yelled another.

'Open the window and rescue them,' piped a little man who was observing the building from under a tall man's coat-tails.

'Bring a ladder!' yelled a sensible man.

'Ladder! ladder! fetch a ladder,' howled a dozen others, and a number of boys were dispatched in various directions for these useful articles.

'Why dosen't some one turn on the fire-alarm?' suggested another man.

'Turn on the alarm!' took up the crowd. 'Call the fire department!' and several men started simultaneously for the fire-alarm house.

'Fifty dollars to the man who saves their lives!' yelled a tall man with a western air and a wide primed hat.

'Break open the doors and go upstairs!' howled an enthusiastic man, as he edged away from the crowd in the opposite direction from the building.

'Save their lives!' yelled another, as he made a break through the crowd for the stone steps, followed by a half-hundred other men.

'Call the police!' said another man.

'Police! police! police!' shouted the crowd.

'Some one will go through the building and rob the offices!' said another one on the outskirts.

'Robbers! Robbers! Police! Police! Fire! Fire! Save the women! Bring a ladder! Burst in the front door!' howled the crowd.

'What's der row?' growled a policeman on the opposite corner, as he observed the crowd.

'Some one's getting killed,' replied an imaginative but innacurate long-rage spectator.

'I'll rap for help,' said the guardian of the peace, graciously.

'What's der matter?' cried another patrolman, as he came panting around the corner.

'Terrible fight over there,' replied the first; 'two men being murdered.'

More raps. More policemen.

Fire-engines heard coming in the distance.

'Let's clear the crowd,' said a policeman.

'Fire! Murder!' Police!' shouted the crowd.

'Clear the way,' howled the officers.

'Whack, thump, bang!' remarked the policemen's clubs as the sturdy officers reached the edge of the crowd.

'Here comes the police! Clear the way! Quit hitting me! Ouch! Stop crowding me!' shouted the spectators, as they made way for the policemen and dodged the fast gathering engines.

'What's the matter?' cried an officer, as he rushed into the building.

'Nothing,' replied the janitor. 'What is the row in the street?'

'What's the row out here?' inquired another officer of one of the spectators in the crowd.

'Nothing is the matter here,' replied that individual. 'It's in the building.'

'Where's the fire?' shouted the fire marshal.

'No fire here,' said the policeman.

'What's the fight about?' inquired the police sergeant, who appeared on the scene at the head of the reserve force.

'No fight,' replied the officer.

'Where's the dead man?' asked the ambulance-driver, as he stopped his panting horses in front of the building.

'No dead man here,' said the officer.

'Well,' ejaculated the sergeant.

'Well!' shouted the policeman, fire marshal, janitor and spectators.

In the thick of the crowd stood the man with the white hair, his eyes still fixed immovably on the building.

'Say, old man!' said the sergeant, as he grasped his arm, 'what in thunder are you looking at?'

The old man slowly turned around, his hat outstretched in his hand, displaying on his breast a large placard which read:

Please Help the Blind.

Three hours later the old man faced the bar of justice in the tombs.

'Charge?' observed the court.

'Begging on the street, blockading the pavement, creating a disturbance,' replied the police sergeant.

'Six months,' replied the court. 'Call the next case.'

Business is Business.

Young Billkins was utterly devoted to business, but somehow found time to fall in love and ask the girl to marry him. The time was set, and he called on the old gentleman to get his consent. He had a long talk, and that evening came up to see the girl.

'Well,' she said, in considerable anxiety, 'What did pa say?'

'He said that wheat was going up, and there was a fine chance for a man to make a handsome little dot.'

'Pshaw! Didn't he say anything else?'

'Oh, yes, we talked about a dozen ventures that might be made, with an excellent chance of coming out ahead every time.'

'Bother the business! What did he say when you asked him if you could have me?'

'Wha—wha—what?' he stammered.

'Why, what did he say about me?'

'By George, Mary, I forgot all about it. I'll go the first thing in the morning and see him about it.'—Merchant Traveler.

Horse Stables.

The condition and health of a horse depends very much upon the kind of stable it is kept in. There are horses which suffer from disease of the eyes, from coughs, from scratches and other skin diseases, all of which are produced by the pungent foil air in the stables. Farmers and others who have horses, will take pains to keep their carriages and harness protected from the strong ammoniatal air of the stables least the leather may be rotted or the varnish dulled and spotted; and at the same time they will wonder why their horses cough, or have weak eyes or moon-blindness, or suffer from other diseases, which, if they would only think for a few minutes, they would readily perceive are due to the foul air the animals are compelled to breath every night in the year while confined in close, badly ventilated stables. The remedy is very easy. The stable should be kept clean; this will prevent the greater part of the mischief; and it should be well ventilated. The floor should be properly drained, so that the liquid will not remain on it, to be absorbed, and decompose, and produce the pungent vapors of amonia, which are so injurious to the eyes, nostrils, throat and lungs, and this liquid waste should be carried away to some place where it can be absorbed and utilized. The floor should be washed off at least twice a week with plenty of water and then liberally sprinkled with finely-ground gypsum [plaster] which will combine with the ammonia, and fix it. A solution of copperas [sulphate of iron] will have the same result. Lastly, the floor should be supplied with absorbent litter, which should be removed when it is soiled. Ventilation should be provided in such a way as to avoid cold drafts. Small openings, which may be easily closed with a slide, may be made in the outer wall near the floor, and similar ones near the ceiling, or in the roof, through which the foil air can escape. Pure air is of the utmost importance to the well-being of horses. As an instance of it may be mentioned the fact that in the English cavalry stables a complete system of ventilation reduced the average loss of horses from the deadly disease, glanders, from one hundred and thirty-two per thousand, yearly, to nine in the thousand; and when a similar improvement was made in the French army stables, the percentage of death was reduced in a similar ratio, with a still larger decrease of milder ailments. —American Agriculturist for June.

Congressional.

The Apportionment Bill as Agreed Upon by the Conference Committee.

HARRISBURG, May 21.—The conference committee on congressional apportionment held its final meeting this morning and completed its labors. The bill as agreed upon makes eighteen sure Republican and eight sure Democratic districts, with the doubtful districts, Schuylkill, and Bucks and Montgomery, according to the vote of 1880. According to the vote of 1884 the Democrats would have but seven districts. The bill is as follows:

The 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th and 6th districts, Philadelphia; 7th, Bucks and Montgomery; 8th, Chester and Delaware; 9th, Lancaster; 10th, Northampton, Carbon, Monroe, Pike and Wayne; 11th, Berks and Lehigh; 12th, Luzerne; 13th, Susquehanna and Lackawanna; 14th, Dauphin, Lebanon and Perry; 15th, Schuylkill; 16th, Bradford, Tioga, Potter and Wyoming; 17th, Cumberland, York and Adams; 18th, Huntingdon, Fulton, Mifflin, Juniata, Snyder and Union; 19th, Cambria, Blair, Somerset and Bedford; 20th, Clearfield, Clinton, Centre, Elk, Forest and Clarion; 21st, Washington, Green and Fayette; 22nd and 23d, Alleghany; 24th, Lycoming, Sullivan, Montour, Columbia and Northumberland; 25th, Westmoreland, Indiana, Armstrong and Jefferson; 26th, Venango, Warren, McKean and Cameron; 37th, Erie and Crawford; 28th, Mercer, Lawrence, Beaver and Butler.

In the senate the report was read and adopted—yeas 31, nays 0—Messrs. Ross [Greene] and Vandegrift voting with the Republicans. The other Democrats did not vote.

The senate then adjourned.

TUESDAY'S account of the Plymouth epidemic reports that the condition of the patients is no better and several of the convalescents have had relapses. The weather is oppressively hot and no efforts have been made yet by the borough council to improve the sanitary state of the town.

FOR the last few weeks the news from Russia and England sound so peaceable that hardly anybody thinks any longer about a war between the two nations. Peace or war, Russia plays its cards well and gets what it wants and England seems to be satisfied anyway.

J. E. EICHHOLTZ, the editor of the Northumberland county Democrat, was appointed postmaster at Sunbury, Pa., vice Jacob Rohrback. President Cleveland certainly picked the right man in this case and we congratulate brother Eichholtz on his promotion.

IT is said that General Grant practically completed his book and will only need to revise the work yet. The latest news of his health are that he rests very well at night and feels much stronger.

E. F. FRELINGHUYSEN, of New Jersey, the Ex-Senator and Ex-Secretary of State under president Arthur, after a lingering illness, died on Wednesday, May 20th, at his home in Newark.

CUNNINGHAM and Burton, the London dynamiters were found guilty and were sentenced to life-long imprisonment.

FROM all parts of Europe the reports talk of stormy and cold weather and it is said that the crops suffered very much.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 25, 1885.

One of the strangest episodes of modern political campaigning is that which has just resulted in the election of Gen. John A. Logan to succeed himself as United States Senator from Illinois. With the Legislature a tie, and Republicans in the body whose antipathy to Logan had already kept him out of an election for very near five months, it needed only Democratic success in one of the strongest Democratic districts in the State, to not only prevent Logan's election, but to ultimately insure the success of some Democratic candidate by the election of a successor to Mr. Shaw. Relying with the utmost confidence upon their strength in the district, Mr. Morrison hies himself away to Washington to see after the distribution of official pap, leaving the only assurance to Democratic success to the tender mercies of such manipulating Republicans as "Long" Jones, Dan Shepard, Ame Babcock and ex-Postmaster Palmer. These men went down into this Democratic stronghold, organized their forces in the dead of night, held them in reserve at every balloting place in the district until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, least the enemy might suspect their intentions, and when the vote was counted that night they had carried off their Senatorial prize by a round majority. At 1 o'clock on the morning after Logan's election, the President's ears were greeted with the thunder of 38 guns, fired under his very windows. It is no wonder that the Democratic party is charged by the enemies of Democracy with never learning and always forgetting.

Decoration Day, which is always a day of distinguished observance in Washington, is to be more than usually attended to this year. The President is expected to speak at the exercises at Arlingtown, and the usual amount of bad poetry will be flung in by way of airing the ambition of those whose poetic souls were disappointed by the cold, bleak spring that we have had. Col. Joice, the poet Leaurate of America, whose divine afflatus has been appropriated by Ella Wheeler, the Sweet Singer of Chicago, will read one of his Iambic effusions, surviving which, the audience will be treated to an idylic effort from the pen and tongue of Dr. Mary Walker.

The project of propelling the cars upon elevated railways by electricity has long been considered feasible, but has not yet been put into practical operation because of the claims of several persons for priority of invention. Edison, who has been claiming everything in the way of applying electricity, was one claimant for the discovery of this method of locomotion, while Sir William Siemens was another, and Ma. S D. Field, of New York, another. Through all of the stages of the contest in the Patent Office here, Mr. Field has carried off the award for the original discovery of the application, and this award has to-day been confirmed by the Commissioner of Patents. This decision, under a recent opinion of the Supreme Court, is a finality, and Mr. Field will at once proceed to apply his invention upon all the elevated roads in New York City. PHONO.

The Revised Bible.

Large Orders Received by the Publishers and the Sales Begun.

The revised version of the Bible was put on sale in Philadelphia and country on Thursday morning, May 21st. The American Sunday School Union received its supply at 12 o'clock, midnight, and three or four minutes later were selling the books and filling orders, with a portion of its day force busily at work. The J. B. Lippincott Co., the agents for the Cambridge edition, have had their hands full for the past week with orders from all over the country, selling large numbers in New York, while Nelson & Sons, of that city, agents for the Oxford edition, have made good sales in Philadelphia. Demands are coming in continually for supplies that cannot be furnished for at least three weeks. The public, and the clerical portion more especially, would not purchase anything but the cheaper styles of the revised New Testament, but now that the revised Bible is finished finer and more lasting copies are demanded. Supplemental orders are constantly being received for both the one and two dollar editions. The Oxford and Cambridge editions are exactly alike. The edition published by Harper & Bros., of New York, is from the Cambridge press, although bearing their imprint.

It is believed that the complete Bible will have a continuous and steady sale and always command a remunerative price. A gentleman connected with one of the religious boards said yesterday that the clergy was sending in large orders, most of which were for one finely bound copy and the remainder for gifts to friends. The sales, he thought, would aggregate in money value more than those of the New Testament.

The book is neatly bound in cloth and contains 925 pages. After the title page comes a preface of ten pages. The Old Testament follows in 679 pages, which are increased in this country to 696 by the addition of seventeen pages of the American committee's recommendations. Following is the New Testament, with 204 pages and a fifteen page preface. The print is clear and beautiful and the binding substantial.

Reprints will be put out by the score, notwithstanding the great cost of composition which the venture will involve.

Victor Hugo, the Poet, Dead.

PARIS, May 22.—Victor Hugo died at half-past one o'clock to-day.

In the Senate M. LeRoyer delivered a eulogy on Hugo. The speaker said that for the past sixty years Victor Hugo had been the admiration of France and the world. He had now entered immortality. His glory belonged to no party, but to all men. Prime Minister Brisson delivered a eulogy in the Chamber of Deputies. He said the whole nation mourned the loss of Victor Hugo, and moved that the funeral of the poet be conducted at the State's expense. The motion was greeted with applause. The Senate and Chamber adjourned out of respect to the memory of the dead.

The newspapers of Paris appear in mourning this evening. It is believed that the funeral will be the grandest seen in France for a century. The poet was sketched as he lay on his death bed by the great painter, Bounat, who will transfer to canvass the impression taken. It is reported that M. Hugo bequeathed his manuscripts to France.

Victor Hugo passed away peacefully, without suffering. His death has caused profound emotion in the capital. The residence of the deceased is surrounded by large crowds. M. Floquet, President of the Chamber of Deputies, has requested M. Allain-Targe, Minister of the Interior, to allow the coffin to lie under the Arc de Triumphe for twenty-four hours. The Municipal Council has expressed the wish that the remains be interred in the Pantheon. This wish will be considered by the Council of Ministers to-morrow. The death of M. Hugo dwarfs every other subject, political as well as social.

Woman's Province.

THE DUTIES OF THE GENTLER SEX—HOW BEST FULFILLED.

What a great task is assigned to woman. Its dignity can not be elevated. It is not her province to make laws, to lead armies, nor to be at the head of great enterprises, but to her is given the power to form those by whom the laws are made, to teach the leaders of mighty armies and the governors of vast empires. She is required to guard against having the slightest taint of bodily infirmity touch the frail creature whose moral, intellectual and physical being is derived from her. She must instil correct principles, inculcate right doctrines, and breathe into the soul of her offspring those pure sentiments which in time to come will be a part of themselves, and bless generations yet unborn. Yes, to woman is given the blessed privilege of aiding the sufferer in all the various stages of his existence. She smiles serenely at the christening, and weeps at the burial, while she soothes the bereaved heart. This is her province and duty. Yet how can she fulfill her mission unless possessed of a strong and healthy body? The preparation of Dr. S. B. Hartman, and known as PERUNA, is just the thing for persons suffering from a majority of the complaints incident to this climate. It is invaluable to women, and Mrs. J. W. Reynolds, of New Lisbon, Columbiana county, Ohio, is a noted example of what the medicine can do. She says she has suffered for years with congestion of the lungs, catarrh in the head, and was troubled with a bad cough. She had tried a number of physicians, but they all failed to cure her. She was induced to try PERUNA, and immediately a marked change took place. After using one bottle her cough ceased and in a short time her other ailments were cured. She is now completely restored to health, and gives all the credit to PERUNA. Mr. J. W. Reynolds, her husband, was a confirmed invalid. He could not sleep well, neither could he work. He used PERUNA, and as a result, was completely restored to his former vigor and strength. He says he now feels like a new man.

Mr. Bernhardt Seubs, St. Clair, St. Clair county, Mich., says: "I have thoroughly tried your PERUNA in the various diseases to which parents and a large family of children are ever liable, and I find it in every case to be just the thing needed. No family can honestly be without it."

Nancy Feterman, Cookport, Indiana County, Pa., says: "Gentlemen: Your valuable PERUNA is the best medicine I ever used."

—IT is now conceded on all sides that there is not and never has been a remedy of such remarkable efficacy as Curtis Carmelite Cordial, in curing cholera, dysentary, cholera morbus, summer complaints, cramps, pains in the bowels, or any intestinal irritation whatever, a single dose brings remarkable relief and a single bottle is guaranteed to cure any case or money refunded. A remarkable pain killer and valuable household remedy.

From Pole to Pole

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has demonstrated its power of cure for all diseases of the blood.

The Harpooner's Story.

New Bedford, June 1, 1883.

DR. J. C. AYER & Co.—Twenty years ago I was a harpooner in the North Pacific, when five others of the crew and myself were laid up with scurvy. Our bodies were bloated, gums swollen and bleeding, teeth loose, purple blotches all over us, and our breath seemed rotten. Take it by and large we were pretty badly off. All our lime-juice was accidentally destroyed, but the captain had a couple dozen bottles of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA and gave us that. We recovered on it quicker than I have ever seen men brought about by any other treatment for Scurvy, and I've seen a good deal of it. Seeing no mention in your Almanac of your Sarsaparilla being good for scurvy, I thought you ought to know of this, and so send you the facts.

Respectfully yours, RALPH Y. WINGATE.

The Trooper's Experience.

Masven, Basutoland (S. Africa,) March 7, 1883.

DR. J. C. AYER & Co.—Gentlemen: I have much pleasure to testify to the great value of your Sarsaparilla. We have been stationed here for over two years, during which time we had to live in tents. Being under canvas for such a time brought on what is called in this country "veldt-sores." I had those sores for some time. I was advised to take your Sarsaparilla, two bottles of which made my sores disappear rapidly, and I am now quite well.

Yours truly, T. K. BODEN,
Trooper, Cape Mounted Riflemen.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only thoroughly effective blood-purifier, the only medicine that eradicates the poisons of Scrofula, Mercury, and Contagious Disease from the system.

WHAT IS DYSPEPSIA?

Among the many symptoms of Dyspepsia or indigestion the most prominent are: Variable appetite; faint, gnawing feeling at pit of the stomach, with unsatisfied craving for food; heartburn, feeling of weight and wind in the stomach, bad breath, bad taste in the mouth, low spirits, general prostration, headache, and constipation. There is no form of disease more prevalent than Dyspepsia, and none so peculiar to the high-living and rapid-eating American people. Alcohol and tobacco produce Dyspepsia; also, bad air, rapid eating, etc. BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS will cure the worst case, by regulating the bowels and toning up the digestive organs. Sold everywhere.

—Israel Vonada and Samuel Wise, executors for the estate of Jeremiah Hoy, deceased, will make public sale of the live stock, farm implements and household goods of the decedent next Saturday at one o'clock, p. m. at the late residence of the deceased in Gregg township.

—W. G. Morrison, who formerly taught the grammar department in this place, was seen in town last week. He canvasses the county in the interest of the new text book for common schools, "Physiology and Hygiene," lately adopted by the legislature as a regular branch of education.

—S. R. Gettig, J. P., of Coburn, called on us last Saturday, and planked down a dollar for the JOURNAL. Wouldn't care if a justice or any other man would visit us on such business every day. Squire Gettig is a very agreeable gentleman and is always welcome in our sanctum.

NOTICE.—Having been appointed agent by the Middletown Tube & Iron Company of Middletown, Pa., for the sale of their Iron Pipes, &c, all persons needing anything in this line will save money by calling on me.

W. H. BARTHOLOMEW,
20-3m Spring Mills, Pa.

—Musser & Smith, our enterprising hardware men, purchased the two lots of the Alexander estate on Main street the other day with the intention of erecting a fine hardware store building on the same. They contemplate erecting a brick structure, for which purpose the brick shall be burned this summer. This will be a great improvement for the central part of Main street which since the fire presents a dilapitated and unsightly appearance.

—A first-class Black Diagonal Suit for $5.00 at Kauffman's store.

—Cheapest Clothing in town at Spigelmyers.

—At last Monday's regular meeting of the fire company the president called a special meeting for Friday evening, 6.30 sharp. The attendance of all the members is urgently requested.

—Al. Grove and Henry Miller moved quarters last week. The former moved to H. H. Weiser, his father-in-law, on Main street, and Mr. Miller took Al. Grove's place in the plastered house.

—W. T. Auman, at present a student at the New Berlin Seminary, was home on a visit to his parents and friends on Friday and Saturday. He went back to the school on Monday's train.

—Aleck Weakley, an aged citizen of this town, died last Thursday and was burried on Saturday. The funeral services were held in the Lutheran chapel by Rev. Deitzler. Deceased was a sufferer from dropsy for the last few years.

—Hon. J. A. Woodward provided us with two maps of the congressional and senatorial apportionment, the bills having been lately passed. The maps are gotten-up in a plain style and at a glance show the different districts. We return our thanks.

NEW GOODS.—Mrs. E. J. Brumgard just received a new lot of Millinery Goods, which comprises the latest and most beautiful styles of Headwear ever brought to town. Her prices are moderate and the ladies are kindly requested to give her a call. tf

—½ Bbl, No 1 Mackerel for $3.50 at Spigelmyers.

—Dietrick Lamade, the business manager of the Williamsport Grit, gave us a pleasant call yesterday. The Grit is well-known in this town and has a fair circulation in Centre county. Mr. S G. Clark has been appointed agent for Millheim, Aaronsburg and Coburn.

—D. S. Kauffman & Co., sell Gents' Fine 4-button Cutaway Suits from $12.00 up.

—Take a look at G. A. Harter's new grocery advertisement this week. He closed his books last Saturday and will only do a strict cash business. But his cash prices will be so low that it will pay his customers to patronize him. For a full and fresh line of groceries George is the man. Don't forget No. 32, Main street.

—Mr. Sol. Ettinger, of Woodward, who last Wednesday morning made an attempt to take his own life by shooting himself, is at present lying at his daughter's residence in Spring Mills, and as we are informed suffers considerably from the wound in his head. His condition does not allow his removal to his home at Woodward.

—Increased buoyancy of spirits, perfect assimilation of food, improved appetite, gain in flesh, sound refreshing sleep, heightened color in the cheeks and lips, added brilliancy to the eyes, follow the use of McDonald's Great Blood Purifier or Sarsaparillian Alterative. A bottle or two used in the family would obviate the entire train of spring maladies. Dissatisfied purchasers can have their money refunded.

—Rev. M. L. Dietzler had a large audience in the Lutheran church last Sunday evening. He preached an able and impressive sermon and his hearers were well satisfied. After the services the election for church officers for the ensuing year was held with the following result: H. E. Duck—Elder; E. J. Brumgart—Deacon; B. O. Deininger, Trustee. These new officers will be installed at the next regular service.

—On Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Keen departed for Bellefonte, where they took the train on Wednesday morning to go West on a visit to their friends in Illinois and Michigan. The good couple expect to spend an indefinite length of time in the land of the setting sun, depending upon their likes or dislikes of the country. The writer as well as their many friends in the community wish them a safe and pleasant trip.

GRAND OPENING.—On Saturday evening there will be a grand opening in the NewStore of D. S. Kauffman & Co., when all their customers and the public in general are invited to give them a call and spend a pleasant time there.

The Millheim Band has consented to be in attendance after the decoration services, and the newly arranged, spacious and well fitted-up store room will contain the best display of goods ever seen in this town. Come and look at the sights.

—The new and splendid Hook and Ladder Truck which arrived on Tuesday morning's train and was conveyed from the station to town by a committee of the town council and the fire department attracted considerable attention all along the road and especially on our streets. A large crowd of people were awaiting it and everybody was pleased with its appearance and greatly admired the fine workmanship and taste with which the truck was gotten up by the manufacturers, Gleason & Bailey. It was taken to Wm. Weiser's wagon shed where it will remain until the truck house on Penn street is completed. On Saturday it will be tastefully decorated for the parade in the evening when the fire company will have charge of it. The affair weighs about 2000 pounds and is 7 feet 10 inches high at the front part. It will be an imposing feature of the procession.

—Best Corn Starch 8 cents at Spigelmyers.

DECORATION DAY.—According to prior announcement the committee appointed to make arrangements for the proper observance of Memorial Day met in the town hall last Saturday evening, Mr. M. I. Jamison presiding.

The following programme was adopted for the exercises: Meeting in the Penn street school yard at 5 o'clock p.m. sharp, where and when the line will be formed in the following order:

Chief Marshal.
Chief Burgess and other borough authorities.
Millheim Cornet Band.
Speakers.
Veterans.
Millheim Hook & Ladder Company.
Sunday Schools.
Citizens.

The column will march down Main street, turn on the eastern side of the bridge and then proceed up Main street to the cemetery where the usual decoration services will be observed. For this purpose the resident ministers of the different churches have been invited to take part in the programme and deliver appropriate addresses. The procession will then reform and march to the diamond where they will break ranks.

The following ladies constitute the committee on flowers and will thankfully receive any floral contributions which may be given them for decorating purposes: Mrs. A. Walter, Mrs. Dr. J. F. Harter, Mrs. F. P. Musser, Mrs. Emma Frank, Mrs. Lizzie Kurzenknabe.

—Boys good Dress Suits for $2 50 at Kauffman's.

—Abs. Musser, of Aaronsburg, who has bought the sole agency and right of manufacture of the celebrated Peerles Washer in Centre county, called on us the otner day and reports that he has several dozen of these washing machines ready to deliver in a few days. He has already sold quite a number and expects to work up a good boom in that business.

—The Misses Kate and Maggie Alexander were in town last week to view the remains of the home of their childhood, so completely devastated by the fire. Many fond memories hung around the old homestead and the ruins must have been a sad sight for them. They requested us to return their thanks to the good people who made such strenuous efforts to save the property.

—J. F. Cook, the gentlemanly agent of the Vermont Marble Quarries was in town last week to call on his old customer, A. C. Musser, of the Millheim Marble Works.

Mr. Musser is busy filling large orders at present and has been setting up some fine monuments of late. Prominent among them is a blue marble family monument for John Roush in Madisonburg and two heavy granite headstones on the grave of Peter Mumbower & wife, the deceased parents of Mrs. Dr. P. T. Musser, Aaronsburg.

SMITH TOWN.

John Kimport was unable to work the greater part of last week on account of a severe cold.

Harvey Bressler from Centre Hall was visiting relatives in and around our town.

The writer received a very interesting letter from Clevan Hockman, an old Millheim friend, who now resides at Franklin, Pa. He likes his position right well and I am always glad to hear from him.

Milton Kern bought a horse for $125 but for some good reason he returned him.

Miss Spade, from Brush Valley, in company with Ella Swartz, from Millheim, were visiting in our town.

J. H. Frank is still hauling lime from his large lime stack, which contained between 3000 and 4000 bushels.

Miss Annie Bierly, of Madisonburg, was the guest of Mrs. Emma Kimport on Sunday.

Last week a young man rode through this place with two horses, which suddenly frightened at some object in the road, and threw him to the ground. He hung to the reins, however, and in a short time succeeded in again mounting one of the horses. He escaped without much injury. JUMBO.

Spring Mills.

The necessary arrangements are being made for the observance of decoration day. The Farmer's Mills band has been engaged to furnish the music for the occasion and prominent speakers will be present to deliver appropriate addresses.

Mr. Runk is putting up neat wire fences on his farm, which adds greatly to its appearance. *

NOTICE.—Having been appointed agent by the Buck Thorn Fence Co., for the sale of the celebrated Buck Thorn Steel Barbed Fencing, I invite persons wanting this handsome, lasting and cheap article to call on me.

—MANY children suffer from day to day; puny, palid, fretful and feverish, variable appetite and restless sleep, finally die, and their parents never suspecting the real cause, that the little sufferers' stomachs are infested and eaten through with worms. Twenty-five cents invested in a box of McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders would save the doctor's bills and the patient's life. Entirely vegetable. Easy and pleasant to take. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

Penn Hall.

Mrs. Geo. Mertz, of the Spring Mills House, was sojourning in our town on Sunday last.

J. W. Bartges is off to Centre Hall, doing some fine painting for Mr. Henney. John knows how to handle the brush and is always crowded with work.

Henry Bidwell has again left us and gone to Bellefonte.

The carriage works of J. C. Condo are running to their full extent and are turning out some of the finest work in the country.

The maxim, "Love your neighbor as yourself," is not very strictly adhered to in our town, while underselling and undermining is going on.

James Krader, who is at present proprietor of the Bartges lime kiln, is busy as a beaver, attending to the wants of the whitewashers. The craze for whitewashing has fairly struck our town and it improves the place very much.

Rev. Dietzler, of the Lutheran charge delivered an excellent German sermon to his congregation on Sunday morning.

Fisher's flouring mill is nearing completion and when finished and in running order will be one of the boss mills in the county.

Some of our boys had too much Barley or Corn juice on last Saturday night. They were howling around on the street at a fearful rate. Boys, behave yourselves in the future and don't make the peaceful hours of night hideous with your beastly yells.

JACK PLANE.

—Messrs. C. F. Deininger and H. K. Luse, of this place, are the manufacturers and agents for Ellison's Ironing and Pressing Board, and have the right of sale in the borough of Millheim, and in Penn, Haines and Gregg townships. The board is one of the handiest inventions out. It may be adjusted to any table and furnishes a stationary and firm support for ironing. It is made of good wood, strongly put together and can be folded up to a convenient size, when not in use. The price is $2.00 and its merits are such that no housewife should be without one. Call on C. F. Deininger or H. K. Luse, Main street, Millheim, Pa. 3t

A Distinguished Brewer.

Unveiling the Statue of Fredrick Lauer, at Reading.

READING, Pa., May 24.—The monument to Fredrick Lauer, the deceased brewer of this city, the gift of the United States Brewers' Congress to the city of Reading, was unveiled in the City Park yesterday. The monument is 16 feet high, and represents Lauer full sized, standing uncovered, manuscript in hand, delivering a speech. This is the first instance on record in this country where a member of the brewing interest has been rewarded by a public memorial. The monument contains two significant inscriptions: 'His zeal sprung from his firm conviction that in striving to advance the brewing trade he was working for the cause of national temperance.' 'Let his example tell the brewers of this country to maintain good fellowship, to preserve their association and to defend their rights. Among the public bodies participating in the ceremonies were the United States Brewers' Congress, which Lauer organized, being its first president, Reading City Councils, the Board of Trade, the School Board, the Liquor Dealers' Association, the County Agricultural Society, the Knights Templars and other secret societies.

An Efficient Remedy

In all cases of Bronchial and Pulmonary Affections is AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. As such it is recognized and prescribed by the medical profession, and in many thousands of families, for the past forty years, it has been regarded as an invaluable household remedy. It is a preparation that only requires to be taken in very small quantities, and a few doses of it administered in the early stages of a cold or cough will effect a speedy cure, and may, very possibly, save life. There is no doubt whatever that

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Has preserved the lives of great numbers of persons, by arresting the development of Laryngitis, Bronchitis, Pneumonia, and Pulmonary Consumption, and by the cure of those dangerous maladies. It should be kept ready for use in every family where there are children, as it is a medicine far superior to all others in the treatment of Croup, the alleviation of Whooping Cough, and the cure of Colds and Influenza, ailments peculiarly incidental to childhood and youth. Promptitude in dealing with all diseases of this class is of the utmost importance. The loss of a single day may, in many cases, entail fatal consequences. Do not waste precious time in experimenting with medicines of doubtful efficacy, while the malady is constantly gaining a deeper hold, but take at once the speediest and most certain to cure,

A Sad History of Grant's House

A New York correspondent tells this story: The saddest history of Gen. Grant's financial misfortunes has never appeared in print until now, and it comes to me on indisputable authority from lawyers. When the General returned from his trip around the world and decided to make New York his place of residence for the future, a number of leading citizens of the metropolis subscribed $100,000 to buy a house for him. After looking the ground over, the brown-stone structure on East Sixty-sixth street, between Madison and Fifth avenues, was decided upon as in every respect eligible. The price, too, was within the amount subscribed—$100,000; but when the donors came to purchase the property they found there was a mortgage for $60,000 upon it which the holder was not willing to yield up. He was entirely satisfied with his interest of some six per cent, and assume the mortgage. This was done, and the remaining $70,000 was turned over to Mrs. Grant, the property having been purchased in her name. It was decided to let the mortgage expire by the limitation of its own terms, and when it fell due to meet it. Meantime the $60,000 was invested by Mrs. Grant at the current rate of interest, and the family moved into their new home in the city of their adoption.

When the General got into the firm of Grant & Ward and became dazed by the vista of financial possibilities which opened up his unsophistic ated eyes in Wall street, a family council was called, and it was deemed advisable to invest Mrs. Grant's $60,000 in Wall street enterprises, which the head of the household fondly believed were paying magnificent and legitimate interest. Why should $60,000 be allowed to draw a beggarly rate of five or six per cent, when it might just as well be turning over fifteen or twenty per cent on the Street?

The $60,000 that was to clear the mortgage on the Grant home on Sixty-sixth street was invested with Grant & Ward, and it was swept away with the rest. Thus the Grant's are, in one sense, merely tenants of the house in which they live, and all because the original holder of the mortgage thought he had too good an investment to let go of when Mrs. Grant had the money to wipe it out.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant ao the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

She Was Mad.

As a lady opened the door of a San Francisco residence to a ring, a neatly dressed individual bowed politely and inserted one foot in the doorway far enough to gurantee that proceedings would not be brought to too summary a close. The lady concluded that he was an agent and remarked in vigorous tones, 'I don't want anything!' at the same time giving undeniable indications that she desired to shut the door.

'I beg your pardon, madam, I am not offering you anything,' said he, with an injured and dignified air.

'Pray excuse me,' she answered, 'my mistake arose from the fact that I have been greatly annoyed by agents. Whom do you wish to see?'

Without noticing her inquiry he said: 'Madam, it is difficult to reconcile your reception of me with what a gentleman would naturally expect at the hands of a lady. Such brusqueness is chilling to refined and sensitive natures, accustomed to the usage of polite society.'

Again apologizing, she was about to ask him in, when he drew from his coat pocket a little box and opening it, explained: 'Madam, I have for sale here an invaluable—'

The feat of extracting his foot from that doorway before the door slammed with a noise that could be heard two blocks, so distracted his attention that he left the sentence uncompleted.

DOWNS' ELIXIR.

N. H. DOWNS'

Vegetable Balsamic

ELIXIR

For the cure of

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the CAUSE, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.

Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.

SOLD EVERYWHERE.

DR. JOHN BULL'S

Smith's Tonic Syrup

FEVER and ACUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER,

AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for impurities of the blood and Scrofulous affections—the King of Blood Purifiers.

DR. JOHN BULL'S VEGETABLE WORM DESTROYER is prepared in the form of candy drops, attractive to the sight and pleasant to the taste.
